

TWIN PEAKS

Yea, we've got a peaceful town here. Not much crime, picturesque scenery... you've seen the waterfall, right? And smell those Douglas firs! We have the normal commerce - department stores, diners, grocery stores, service stations... but our main industry is the sawmill. We did have a spot of trouble last year, when Josie's husband died. Mr. Packard owned the sawmill. Died in a boating accident - it was determined to be an accident. And Norma's husband is still in prison for manslaughter. Other than that, not much trouble. Yep, we're a small town - one high school, just the one sheriff's station... but there is evil, evil in the woods.

1.

A tree is growing a bit below
To commemorate our fallen hero
Though known for indulging in Buddhist whim
He also bestowed his sly wisdom
He knew someone broke Laura's heart
Does the killer have the other part?
To play the role, you must pass a test
Pull the string - you'll know the rest. ound
d must see
y.

2. This town's so small, it's easy to note
A stranger wearing a black trench coat
Though his habits may seem a bit peculiar He's not a man that you can lure
The sheriff has welcomed him to the station
For he's from the Bureau of Investigation.
That young horn girl has been trying to flirt
While our man Cooper is digging up dirt
But while he's practicing his inscrutable Zen
A mysterious stranger does him in
You don't believe he's breathed his last
To learn his secrets you must find him fast
To his building you go like a bat out of hell
For more about the victim, his dreams can tell.

3. The poor victim's name was Laura Palmer
The family now quickly wants to embalm her
If the source of this mystery you are to derive
You must know more about Laura when she was alive
It seems Laura could be quite altruistic
She helped poor Johnny, who is autistic
Norma told you she volunteered for Meals on Wheels
Charity covered up her naughty deals
To Hilgard you go, but do not mingle
On that street you'll find your shingle

4. Unfortunately, this clue is gruesome
The murderer now, you must not lose him!
Dear Laura was tortured before her death
And whispered incriminating evidence with her last breath
The bird was there, and heard it all
But he was shot before he could squall
They left the cabin for a hidden torture site,
You must go there for evidence to indict
To the scene of the crime, now if you could
On Sunset, in West Hollywood.

5. You're learning that Laura's life was strange
She was part of a sexual exchange
More than just pictures in a magazine
Her alter ego was a libertine
She volunteered for charity, but in her spare time,
She asked big spenders for a dime
Across the border, she plied her trade
Seemingly part of a drugged charade
At Horn's perfume counter, she got her start
But somewhere else, she dressed for the part
Hollywood had the clothes she wanted
Go there now, but you'll be taunted.

6. You loved this quiet and peaceful town
But crime has turned it upside down
Murder was formerly out of the ordinary
But now it almost seems secondary
The sexual perversity has started to torment
This sleepy burg that once lay dormant
One murder was rare, but now we have many
You must find the motive, if there was any
One victim took secrets to his death
But you suspect with his last breath
He implicated the mastermind
In Hollywood, you've much to find
Leo didn't take buried treasure
But what he knows you cannot measure
He's interred with his mother here
Go bravely in and do not fear.

7. Her boyfriend now is with her best friend
But they were true until her end.
They had a powerful friend they could not see
James' uncle was in the Secret Society
His garage was a place they could go
To exchange secret messages and innuendo
His garage is now in Beverlywood
(And Nadine's drapes hang as they should)
Southward on LC is your direction
Uncle has seen an indiscretion.

8. Though many put Laura's life in danger
You can't identify which mysterious stranger
Would want to end her life so cruelly
Maybe the husband of waitress Shelley?
It's been a while since your last cup o' Joe
You're hungry too, but where should you go?
When you're stressed out, you need to eat
Usually Lucy provides the treat
Time for donuts and a coffee break
Then you'll regroup and catch the snake.
The City of Canals was named for this street
Motor there now for something sweet.

9. Seems you're always one step behind
This pervert with the criminal mind
He has become your arch-nemesis
You must find him to bring him to justice
A video was found in Laura's cache
She and Donna were having a bash
A private picnic, just for three
At this park, there's evidence to see
Use your Mind now, and you'll realize
Why Laura snuck here to meet her guys.
